Now we'll cover Google Web Starter Kit's built-in javascript library. The JavaScript library of GWSK contains a few neat little gadgets. One of them is the gallery which allows you to create nice looking image galleries. I don't think there's another gallery with that flexibility. The first thing we'll do is create a div id for our gallery. We'll give it a class. Create a div with id = gallery 2. We'll add style attributes as well for our gallery. I'll use a 'responsive' style here for the purpose of illustration. The GWSK gallery will automatically alter its styling to fit the screen size of the browser. 3. Now that we're ready to code, we'll create a basic javascript which makes use of the GWSK gallery. add a script element in the head section of your document 4. We'll create an array called gallery. This array will contain the link elements of your gallery. In this example, I'll fetch the images of the Gettysburg battlefield. 5. create an empty array for the path in the format: '/url/to/image.jpg' 6. Set a variable called gallerySize to 3. This will tell us the maximum number of images that the gallery can show. 7. Now we'll create the onload function which will add each image in the array gallery to the bff6bb2d33
