Are you ready to turn the world upside down? Grab your boom box, get your space pen, and get ready to fly. The world is about to end. Characters, names, brands, and trademarks are the property of their respective owners. The game is the sequel to Destiny, a popular first-person multiplayer online game developed by Bungie and published by Activision for Microsoft Windows, PlayStation 4, and Xbox One. The first game was released in 2014 and has sold over 30 million copies. Destiny 2 was released on September 8, 2016, three years after the original release, with the goal of being an even bigger game. The game features a large cast of characters, many of whom had first-hand experience with the previous game. Destiny 2 introduced a new activity called "The Crucible," which is a battle royale game mode, where up to 32 players fight for survival. It is played on a large map with various areas. All parts of the game are designed to be better on high-end machines. Destiny 2 had very low visuals on the low-end machines like the PlayStation 3 and Xbox 360 compared to the high end machines at the time. Unlike the original, Destiny 2 had no input lag, and features a more improved game engine. This means that Destiny 2 runs faster on Windows and PlayStation 4 than the original does. The main plot of the game involves the battle to maintain control over Earth's solar systems and its planets. Soon after the player's home solar system, named "Golden City", is invaded by alien species, the player sends out the group of Guardians (faction), who are tasked with keeping the aliens and their hybrids out of humanity's territories while searching for the planetary atlas and red comet (enemies) that play a role in the story. The player is asked to help fight a war of resistance to stop alien rulers whose focus is to enslave humanity. The plot is expanded in the expansion pass for the game, a feature which was not present in the original. Gameplay Destiny 2 continues to be a first-person shooter. The game is mostly played from a first-person perspective, but when in third-person view the player can shoot while moving.

Challenge This month's challenge theme is "Daredevil". It was a good one. Have a look at what some of our entrants have to offer. Submission guidelines: Fishing Planet hosts a number of challenges each month; a topic and a word prompt where participants are invited to come up with the best piece of flash fiction (of 200-300 words or so). Fiction does not have to be on a particular level, just that it follows the prompt. There are always prizes available through Review Skills, and TOTSA himself will submit the best bit for publication next month. Click here for full TOTSA's entry guidelines and participation requirements. The time limit of this round is midnight 31st August. Get it submitted and it's in. Prompt: "Daredevil" (Write a story using the prompt "Daredevil", show the character as if he may have had super powers. Show the character leaping through buildings, or bowling over his enemies with ease - using the prompt as a springboard.) Challenge Entries Aargh: This was a story I wrote for a couple of months ago and decided to polish it up and submit. I guess Superhuman is always a dangerous job. Adam: If you have a weird or cute stray cat or dog, this story is not for you. Richard Bayne: Deep in the woods, there is a small cabin; the people inside used to be normal, but now they have the ability to levitate and can fly, they have to protect themselves from villains that are always hot on their heels. Tv: A greedy city girl is maimed when she answers the call of duty as a flying superhero and ends up turning into a monster. The Devil: A man sits in the window of a rundown building, drinking beer. He hasn't slept in a long time, not since he first met the man across the lake. David. Tudor: A girl goes out on a secret super hero mission, and only discovers that she has super powers only after the fact. EDITOR: Merry Christmas, BBG! I've never been so excited for free ads. Well, that and seeing what kind of stories my readers come up with. Superhero stories galore! And there was a fair few good ones too. There's our first winner! I don't know if this is authentic
