Organic conjugated polyelectrolytes. Saturated organic conjugated polyelectrolytes, showing continuous pi-pi conjugation along their molecular backbones, were prepared via direct oxidation polymerization of oligo(phenylene ethynylene) (OPE). Two types of OPE were prepared: one with terminal alkyne groups (OPE-alkyne), and one with terminal alkene groups (OPE-ene). X-ray photoelectron spectroscopy and density functional theory (DFT) calculations of the gas-phase structures of these two types of molecules showed that the alkyne and the alkene groups are located on the opposite faces of the molecules, so that the molecule has an overall D(3h) symmetry. Interestingly, the alkene group is located at the center of the molecule, but the NMR signals of the alkene group are not observed in the solution state. However, the alkene group NMR signals are observed in the solid state. This shows that the solid-state polymer molecules with the alkene group are more rigid than the gas-phase molecules. The photochemical behavior of these molecules was studied in solution and in the solid state using pump-probe time-resolved spectroscopy. Importantly, OPE-ene showed more prominent transient absorption in the Soret band and smaller transient absorption in the visible region than OPE-alkyne. These observations might be explained by the change in the shape of the OPE backbone.The Roots provide their own 'unfinished' album ST. LOUIS — A few

By the end of the Civil War, however, round-bell towers were already in steep decline, and church bells were being silenced altogether. Between 1850 and 1914, over a dozen New England towns lost their round-bell towers. The most famous might have been East Aurora, New York's tower that was blown up by anarchists in 1885. But even more dramatically, St. Mary's Round Church in the little New England town of Oxford, Massachusetts, was destroyed by fire in 1883, making it the very last pre-Fireplace Era church bell tower in New England. [1] What happened? In 1839, Oxford's Round Church began a lengthy series of renovations, including the addition of a third, narrower ring. [2] By 1856 the church was complete—and by 1862, the expanded tower doubled the previous capacity
