"Schools returned Wednesday as the curfews imposed in the past two weeks were lifted," state education minister Kembo Mohadi told a news conference on Tuesday. "We will be moving to a new level, considering this government is only planning to take the first steps as we intensify our campaign," she said. "We are facing a tough battle against the COVID-19 crisis, but we are indeed capable." Despite the lifting of the curfew, the state of emergency continues. All schools and some businesses remain closed until further notice. "Our biggest concern is the fact that the majority of the people who contracted the virus had no symptoms. We are not sure how many cases there are among the general public," said the minister. She confirmed that that a total of 5,000 people have been diagnosed with the virus. The case tally is expected to swell as more people

9.28 Mb. The severity of this was partly caused by a poor study of the topic (chapter one). 5 In Chapter one the author appeared to have completed only 1st year but the information and study done in 2nd year were not presented clearly. 6 1.1.3 The difficulty of problem-solving was difficult and high-level reasoning by students was also difficult. 1.2.1 The students did not learn how to work efficiently and carry out problem-solving individually. 1.2.2 The problem-solving process has been inadequate. 1.3.1 The students did not have the curiosity, willing to learn and have the feeling of "I can solve the question" in order to have a clearer view of the problem-solving process. 1.3.2 It is not clear what is the focus of the problem-solving. 1.3.3 The problem-solving time in 1st year was 5 mins and it was over 15 mins in 2nd year. 7 The authors' conclusion was that the subject topic was not clear and the teaching methods needed to be refined. According to the Japan Secondary Education Act, it is necessary to carry out problem-solving that directly relates to the curriculum in the grades 6-9. It is one of the important subjects of the Intermediate Education Subjects, and it is integrated into the Social Studies, Science, Language, Mathematics and Physical Education. Problem-solving is a form of teaching in which a teacher presents a problem to a group of students, and the students try to solve the problem individually or with a partner. Teaching the problem-solving method is a means of communicating to the students the thought that "I can solve the problem." The object of problem-solving is
