"We're not looking at outside players at this time," Kreis said. Stephens, 34, was traded to the Galaxy from Real Salt Lake in July 2015 and was recently released from the MLS club. Stephens played for the Whitecaps from 2010 to 2011 and New York City FC before the trade. "He's another one of those outside players that we could potentially pursue, but we're focused on what we have on our roster now and we're going to do things the right way," Kreis said, "not because we're worried about the approval of one or the other or because one or the other is a decision that we wouldn't be able to make if they were on our roster." The likely candidates to replace Stephens in NYCFC's back line are Alexander Callens, Sean Johnson and James Sands.
