Fine Arts Profiles Looking for the perfect student entrepreneur? We did the legwork, and here are five students who beat the odds, made it big and now want to help others follow their lead. Stephanie Eberhard

Stephanie Eberhard is the founder of Utica Boutique, which creates custom mixology items like cloth blood moons and nontraditional summer cocktails. Using fresh, locally-sourced ingredients, and classic techniques, Stephanie crafts a drink with her own secret recipes — and her own loving hand. Stephanie grew up in Doylestown, PA, and earned a Business Degree from the University of the Arts. She has two years of art experience, and she currently lives in Philadelphia. She's a self-taught cocktail enthusiast with an M.B.A. in Business. But cocktails aren't the only thing she's drawn to. Growing up, she craved the excitement of adventure, and in college, she took off on a cross-country car trip. She's been on the road ever since. There are opportunities around every corner to get involved in this world, and life is all about trying new things — and learning from them. Running her own business taught her a lot about herself. It taught her to take risk, and to be flexible and creative. It also made her question what opportunities she had in front of her. How can she empower people to live their dream, even when the slow with really large arrays Hi I'm developing a small application for you guys. I do some mathy stuff, combining different matrices(numbers), and then I'm testing how long it takes to do stuff. So I start counting when I'm doing some math, and I get some really weird results: 1: 42 2: 18938571283 3: 52571123380 4: 103037849556 5: 218636430208 6: 435653840544 7: 820968430992 8: 1459827663784 9: 2715141003552 10: 4861163519040 11: 8252435592416 12: 16171813628672 13:

big slowdown, but I can't figure out what is slowing my program down, as the number should simply go up. I thought that maybe it's the JIT getting involved, but my program is in release build. I hope I made myself clear enough. Cheers A: String concatenation can be quite slow. I'd expect runtime reflection on the assembly you're in, as well as a bottleneck when you start dealing with large numbers of strings. Try building up your numbers in a loop instead of conc
