Convert any single PDF file, or multiple PDF documents, to multiple JPG pictures, or vice-versa. Windows: What is the difference between type IP6 and IPv6 address? I want to know the difference between type IP6 and IPv6 address. In C# what I have to do for: IPAddress ip6 = new IPAddress("IP6"); IPAddress ipv6 = new IPAddress("IPv6"); or IPAddress ip6 = new IP("IP6"); IPAddress ipv6 = new IP("IPv6"); A: Not a lot, really. IPv6 specifies a type of address and defines it. IP6 indicates the fact that the IP address is one of the newer types, but does not define what this newer type is (only that it is newer). So: IPv6 address IPv6 type IP6 address The type is for when the type is shown explicitly in documentation (or when it's required for type checking). The address is for when the address is shown explicitly in documentation (or when it's a generic identifier).
