With so many powerful features in Photoshop, your work can't just be limited just because of its price tag. Unlike the other applications having a small number of expensive features, Photoshop has a large amount of features to offer. The features that Photoshop has to offer are by itself worth buying this software. Photoshop allows users to design, develop, and retouch photos on most digital format of images. It allows them to use their skills to create and publish quality images faster. Although Photoshop doesn't have the tools to be compared to the best GIMP, it is the most powerful tool that can edit/convert, correct, and simulate almost anything. Although the application has fewer features than are offered by other image editing applications, the capabilities that Photoshop does offer are amazing, and your creativity can be revitalized by using them. You also get features that most other image editors don't have such as the Layer Mask feature. The Layer Mask provides the feature to show exposed and unexposed portions of the layers. Another powerful feature is the non-destructive feature, which allows you to paint directly over the masked layer and still transparently remove the covered portions of the layer while leaving the underlying pixels untouched. Photoshop also doesn't restrict you from using any of the features of this software. It allows you to use the features as your desire and have control over the settings, appearance, and behavior of every feature in a layer.
